

Residential Energy Efficiency Audit Contractors

Every dollar invested in energy efficiency will yield more than a dollar in savings. This return on investment is often paid back in 1-3 years, and the savings continue for many years. A home energy auditor can not only provide a systematic evaluation to help you identify and set priorities for these efficiency investment opportunities, they can help improve the safety and durability of what is typically your biggest investment, your home. We offer this list to help Delawareans select a qualified residential energy audit contractor. State, Federal and local governments often have programs to help support energy audits and efficiency investments through tax break or rebates, though these program vary based on funding availability. Please contact the Delaware Energy office at 302-735-3480, or go to <http://www.energy.dnrec.delaware.gov> or for more information.*

This list of home energy audit contractors constitutes neither an endorsement by the State government of Delaware, nor a representation that this is a complete list. We have made a good faith effort at compiling a list of contractors who are known, as of June 2010, (1) to be Building Performance Institute (BPI) Certified (e.g., as a Building Analyst) and/or an accredited "HERS" Rater (Home Energy Rating System) through the Residential Energy Services Network ("RESNET") (2) to have performed recent energy audits in Delaware. It is provided as convenience to help Delawareans "shop" for an energy audit, as part of the state's broader efforts to save energy, save money, prevent pollution, increase comfort, and increase efficiency, safety and durability.*
